Montreal, May 14, 2021 - At the end of an unprecedented edition, the Concours musical international de Montréal (CMIM) has unveiled the winners of its Piano 2021 edition.

It is Su Yeon Kim, from South Korea, who wins the First Prize this year. She collects prizes and scholarships valued at over $ 180,000; an unprecedented total sum for the CMIM. The undeniable talent of this young 27-year-old pianist, her technique, her musicality, combined with a fair and daring program choice transcended the screen and convinced the international jury.

The second prize, the Pierre Péladeau and Raymonde Chopin Prize, and the 3rd Prize offered by Stingray Classica were won respectively by Yoichiro Chiba from Japan and by Dimitri Malignan from France.

Chaired by Zarin Mehta, the jury of the 19th edition of the CMIM brought together Arnaldo Cohen (United States), Martin Engstroem (Sweden), Till Fellner (Austria), Mari Kodama (Japan), Hélène Mercier (Canada), Costa Pilavachi (Canada), Charles Richard-Hamelin (Canada), Rena Shereshevskaya (Russia) and Susan Wadsworth (United States).

26 competitors from 11 distinct countries participated remotely in the 2021 Piano events. Orchestrated from Montreal, this tour de force was produced in close collaboration with 16 technical teams working in as many major cities around the world. Despite this particular context, the CMIM has made sure to grant fair and equitable conditions to all competitors while investing all needed efforts to maintain the high-quality standards that made its reputation.

International audience

The CMIM has made a point to offer each competitor the opportunity to play in the presence of spectators listening from around the world. The challenge was met brilliantly by the Montreal team, as more than three million listeners were reached for this completely free and virtual edition.

About CMIM

Founded in 2001, the Concours musical international de Montréal (CMIM) is an annual event whose audience is experiencing a significant increase this year due to free digital accessibility to recitals. It allows the young participating musicians to breathe a sigh of relief at this time when they so badly need to be heard and launch their careers.

The CMIM aims to discover and help young singers, violinists and pianists who distinguish themselves by the mastery of their art. Since the first edition devoted to singing in 2002, nearly 4,000 candidates have registered for the Competition and no less than 500 have been welcomed to Montreal, to the delight of music lovers. Among the 75 laureates are soprano Measha Brueggergosman, baritone Philippe Sly, violinist Benjamin Beilman, pianist Beatrice Rana, soprano Angela Meade and pianist Charles Richard-Hamelin.
